The Utah State Land board, consisting of W. D. Candland, William H. Thaine, W. H. Farnsworth and A. G. county, where an inspection was made of the property of the Oasis Land and Irrigation company, located near the town of Burtner.

The party left Friday over the Salt Lake Route in a special car arranged for by J. H. Manderfield, assistant general freight and passenger agent.

The land board, in connection with the officers of the company, including A. H. Bohnstengel, secretary and treasurer, C. A. McClain and F. L. Copering, selling agents and Richard R. Loman, cogineer of the project, left the railroad terminus at Burtner Saturday morning and traveled up the Sevier fiver to a point about four miles north of the lown, where the diversion dam is located. Here the land board began the inspection, after the head water plans had been explained by the engineer. The water in the Sevier river is stored in a reservoir at a point about four miles north of the diversion dam. The reservoir storage dam is located at a point in the earnyon where two steep rocky points come together almost forming a patural reservoir.

By means of the dam, which is seviral reservoir.

By means of the dam, which is sevenity feet in height, the water is backed up for a distance of fifteen miles, thus forming a reservoir with a capacity of 90,000 acre feet of water, according to the estimate of the state engineer. The dam is 760 feet long and 336 feet wide at the bottom and is provided with a spillway cut in solid rock, thus providing against overflows due to high water. The discharge gates of the reservoir are set in a solid rock ledge of the promontory extending down under that the transgression of the law is

How Water Is Diverted.

As soon as the irrigation season starts the water from the reservoir is drawn off to the diversion dam fifty miles below. The dam here is 800 feet long, 36 feet high and 318 feet wide at the bottom. The water is backed up to a height of about thirty feet above the original level of the river and is led off through the big canal headgate toward the country south of the river. The dam for the most part is built of earth with a big concrete spillway near the center ninety feet wide. The waste water flows down a sixty foot shoot at an angle of 45 degrees and strikes the bottom in a solid concrete abatiment and is then diverted toward the rought to the old river channel. A concrete gate well has been provided with a concrete trunghild with steel gates arranged to carry part of the surplus water during high water season. A concrete gate well has been provided for the spillway with steel gates to take care of the water flowing over. In this gate-well two pines have been placed, a three-foot steel pape and a four-foot pipe through which water will be carried from the dam, to be used for generating electrical power. At present there is about 1000 second feet of water flowing over the dam to the Sevier sink. Aviator at Midvale Finds Engine Too Light, but Trial Is Successful.

Several hundred aviation enthusiasts ourneyed to Bingham Junction or Midvale Sunday afternoon to witness the attempt of L. R. Culver to make a flight in a machine built by himself. Owing to the fact that his engine lacked sufficient power to lift the aeroplane from the ground, no flight was made, but the test was satisfactory to the inventor and to his friends, for it was proved conclusively that with a more powerful engine Culver will be able to soar.

During the afternoon the biplane was attached to an automobile by means of a 75-foot rope and Culver rose to, a height of fifteen feet. general of the diocese of Solt Lake. Mass was said before the services began at the site of the new church.

A large number of people attended, Many of these were from Montana and from Selt Lake. The new church will cost approximately $7500. It is altuated at the corner of Utah atreet and Third avenue, in the center of the city. It will be landsome from an architectural standpoint, and the grounds will be improved by the making of lawns and the planting of fir trees, following the general scheme of beautifying in vogue in Toocle. It is said that there are 700 Catholies in Toocle, and the church will soon have a priest stationed there, it is believed. Pending that time, the Rev. Father D. Slattery will conduct services on the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

A notable feature of Sunday's ceremonles was the address of Mayor Henry Marshall, a member of the Mormon church. Mayor Marshall gave the Catholies a warm welcome. Pertinent excerpts from his address are:
